Seventh Grade

Surreal Self Portraits

These self portraits were inspired by artists who did not merely represent surface reality. Students looked at the artwork of Remedios Varos, Frida Kahlo, Marc Chagall and Howard Finster, four very different artists with unique ways of representing the world. Each student then sketched out ideas about how to create a self portrait that presented a side of them that others would not see at first glance. Students drew their ideas on watercolor paper, but could use a wide range of media for their final artwork.
